

IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

MEDIA CONTACT: Lisa Mullen
Owner of Rocky Mountain Sanitation
(970) 243-9812

August 9, 2010

Waste and Recycling News recognizes Rocky Mountain Sanitation as one of the Top 100 hauling and disposal companies for 2010.

GRAND JUNCTION, COLORADO – Waste and Recycling News recently released their 2010 hauling and disposal ranking numbers and the color purple was in attendance. Locally owned and operated, Rocky Mountain Sanitation was recognized as one of the top 100 hauling and disposal companies in the United States and Canada for 2010. This will be their second straight year making the list. The companies are ranked according to revenue from hauling, disposal and transfer of all types of residential, commercial and industrial waste. The list excludes revenue from incineration and the sales of recyclables.

"Rocky Mountain Sanitation is proud to be recognized as one of the top 100 hauling and disposal companies for a second straight year," said Lisa Mullen, owner of Rocky Mountain Sanitation. "This recognition is the result of our hard work and attention to building customer relations."

More and more companies are recognizing the need to deliver uncompromising service in order to remain competitive. Over the past 13 years, Rocky Mountain Sanitation made a promise to strive everyday to provide clean, reliable trash removal service at an affordable price. Today, that vision is paying off. Rocky Mountain Sanitation has experienced noteworthy growth of 55 percent in the past four years.

About Rocky Mountain Sanitation:

In 1997, Lisa and Loren Mullen founded Rocky Mountain Sanitation to service the residential market with two trucks and one employee. Today, Rocky Mountain Sanitation is a multifaceted company providing comprehensive waste management services to Mesa County residents and business owners. With 20 employees, 16 trucks and 10,000 customers, Rocky Mountain Sanitation strives for excellent service in residential, construction and commercial applications.

About Waste and Recycling News:

Founded in 1995, Waste & Recycling News is a tabloid newspaper published biweekly for environmental managers. The paper and its Web site, wasterecyclingnews.com, report on the generation and handling of solid and hazardous waste and the management of wastewater and air pollution. The publication circulation is 52,838.

To learn more about Rocky Mountain Sanitation and the Waste and Recycling News top 100 hauling and disposal list, please call Lisa Mullen at (970)243-9812.

###